Collections

With the generous support of friends and alumni, the University of Delaware Library has built distinctive collections of more than 2,800,000 volumes in fields that complement the University's academic programs. Holdings within Special Collections include over 100,000 books, more than 500,000 manuscripts, historical maps, broadsides, posters, trade and seed catalogs. Book collections of national significance contain rare and important editions in the history of chemistry, engineering, and technology; the history of printing and papermaking; American horticulture and landscape architecture; the applied and decorative arts; U.S. travel and exploration and Delawareana. The rare book and manuscript holdings of writers important to twentieth-century Irish, American, and British literature constitute an area of outstanding strength and current growth. Djuna Barnes, Paul Bowles, Kay Boyle, John Malcom Brinnin, Brian Coffey, Alice Dunbar-Nelson, Mark Harris, Ernest Hemingway, Donald Justice, Hugh MacDiarmid, Ishmael Reed, W. D. Snodgrass, Gilbert Sorrentino, Louis Untermeyer, Tennessee Williams and William Butler Yeats are among the authors represented by original manuscripts and correspondence.

All illustrations in this brochure were reproduced from originals in Special Collections, University of Delaware Library.

A group for friends of books, libraries and learning at the University of Delaware

Founded in 1958, the University of Delaware Library Associates work to expand and enrich the research collections of the University of Delaware Library through gifts from members, funds raised by University of Delaware Library Associates programs and donations of significant books. The University of Delaware Library Associates also sponsor publications and activities that make the collections better known to the University and national scholarly communities and to members of the public. Private matching funds raised by the University of Delaware Library Associates contributed substantially to the expansion and renovation of the Hugh M. Morris Library, begun in 1983 as part of the University's 150th anniversary celebration and completed in 1986. Special Collections includes a separate gallery for public exhibitions which, together with related publications and programs, contribute to a broader awareness of the University of Delaware Library's important scholarly resources.

Activities and Benefits
