About Erik Larson

Erik Larson is the author of five New York Times bestsellers, most recently Dead Wake: The Last Crossing of the Lusitania, which hit #1 on the Times list soon after launch.

His previous book was In the Garden of Beasts: Love, Terror, and an American Family in Hitler’s Berlin, which also hit #1 and remained on the printed list for 35 weeks. Larson’s book The Devil in the White City stayed on the Times’ hardcover and paperback list for a combined total of over five years. It won an Edgar Award for nonfiction crime writing and was a finalist for a National Book Award.

For his 2006 bestseller, Thunderstruck, Larson accomplished prodigious research for the book even going as far as to learn Italian while developing an advanced appreciation for Italian red wines. He also is author of the international bestseller Isaac’s Storm, published in September 1999. In addition to becoming an immediate Times bestseller, the book won the American Meteorology Society’s prestigious Louis J. Battan Author’s Award. The Washington Post called it the “‘Jaws’ of hurricane yarns.”

Larson’s first newspaper job was with The Bucks County Courier Times in Levittown, Pennsylvania, where he wrote about murder, witches, environmental poisons and other “equally pleasant” things. He later became a features writer for The Wall Street Journal and TIME Magazine, where he is still a contributing writer. His magazine stories have appeared in The New Yorker, The Atlantic Monthly, Harper’s and other publications.

He graduated summa cum laude from the University of Pennsylvania, where he studied Russian history, language and culture. Larson received a master’s in journalism from Columbia University. He has taught non-fiction writing at San Francisco State, the Johns Hopkins Writing Seminars, the University of Oregon and has spoken to audiences from coast to coast.
